

The diagram shows a scatter plot of data points (circles) on a coordinate system. A solid black line represents the linear regression fit. Two dashed black lines parallel to the solid line represent the confidence interval. The area between the dashed lines is shaded light blue, and the area outside is shaded light orange. The data points are distributed across the plot, with some points having concentric circles around them, possibly indicating higher density or specific data points of interest.